Dear Student:

Congratulations as you begin the final stages of your high school career. You have exciting challenges ahead as you prepare for a significant milestone in your life—your high school graduation. While this is a major achievement, your education should not stop here. Pursuing higher education enables you to compete in the global economy. I am pleased to recommend Getting In, the state's premier college planning and student financial aid publication for high school seniors. Produced by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA), Getting In is your complete guide to college admissions and financial aid processes. It contains in-depth information about Kentucky colleges and universities, including their programs of study.

The Commonwealth provides millions of dollars annually in merit-based and need-based financial aid to help Kentucky students pay higher education expenses. As you and your family consider options available, I want to direct your attention to a couple of additional considerations.

The Student Loan People, Kentucky's only nonprofit provider of student loans, offers the lowest cost loans in the state. Visit studentloanpeople.com for more information.

You may also be eligible for the tuition tax credit approved by the 2005 Kentucky General Assembly. Call the Kentucky Department of Revenue at 502.564.4581 or visit revenue.ky.gov/tvchelp.htm. The credit may be applied for you, your parents or other dependents for undergraduate enrollment at an eligible Kentucky higher education institution.

A college education is a big investment, so keep in mind these ways of making it more affordable. For more information, go to GoFigherKY.org. I wish you every success in future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Ernie Fletcher

Introduction

KHEAA and the Student Loan People invite you to use the 31st edition of Getting In to help you through the admissions and financial aid processes. It's easy to use.

Chapter 1 provides general information and guidelines you'll need to begin planning for education or training after high school.

Chapter 2 is devoted to financial aid — money to help you pay for higher education. You'll find helpful information on how to help finance your college education, what kinds of financial aid is available and how you can qualify. You'll also find useful tips and answers to frequently asked questions.

Chapter 3 contains information on colleges, universities and trade schools. There's a wealth of information here, so take the time to look over the different schools and see what each one has to offer.

Getting In is free and also available on www.kheaa.com. It can be reproduced for use by students, counselors, parents, financial aid officers and others at no cost. Information from Getting In is not to be presented as part of a for-pay presentation or sold in part or in its entirety by any person or organization. If you received any or all of this publication at a paid event or were charged for it, please let us know.

JUST THE FACTS

Someone who earns a bachelor's degree will make an average of $15,500 more each year than someone with just a high school diploma. Over a 30-year working lifetime, that's an additional $465,000!

This graph gives the 2003 median earnings of people in Kentucky over age 25, both sexes, who work year-round at a full-time job, based on their level of education. A median is a middle value, so the number of people earning less than the median is equal to the number of people earning more than the median.

HAVE QUESTIONS?

What about grades?

Hopefully you've already been making the best grades you can. If you haven't, start now. That can show a college admissions counselor you've started taking your education seriously. Making better grades this year will also help you earn more money for college through the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). For more about KEES, see page 35.

What about a career?

Many seniors have already decided on a career. If you haven't, that's fine. Talk with people who in careers that interest you. Ask them where they went to school and if they'd recommend that school. You can also do a little research now. Ask your counselor to help you check out the Kentucky Career Information System or the Occupational Outlook Handbook, which is available online at www.bls.gov/oco.

Where should I go?

You and your parents will decide that based on lots of things — how much it costs, how good an education it offers, how far away it is, etc. Find out everything you can about a school that interests you. Check websites first, then go for a visit, preferably while classes are in session. Use the checklist in the back as a guide.

What if the school is expensive?

Don't get discouraged. Schools that cost more often provide more financial aid. Find out what the school has to offer in student aid.

What if I'm still confused?

Then you're like a lot of seniors. Ask for help from your parents, your guidance counselor and others. We can help too. Check out pages 13–14.

How do I get ready for college?

Make sure you're taking the right courses. You'll generally need a diploma or a GED, although two-year schools and trade schools may waive that requirement. Most four-year schools require the Precollege Curriculum (see page 6) to enter a bachelor's degree program.

What if no school in Kentucky offers what I want to major in?

The Academic Common Market might be your answer. See page 30 for more information. If you plan to attend a school outside Kentucky, check the school's website for admissions information. It's also a good idea to follow up by e-mailing or writing to the admissions office.

What tests do I have to take?

It depends on the school. Kentucky's four-year colleges and universities generally require the ACT or SAT. The state's two-year colleges require the ACT or COMPASS, ASSET or other placement test. Trade schools may require the ACT, CPA^t or some other placement test. Check out each school's listing in Chapter 3. For more information about these exams, see pages 7–9.

How safe will I be on campus?

Ask the school for a copy of its campus security report, which has data on campus crimes and security policies. The school must give you a copy. Many schools have this on their websites.

When should I apply?

If you know where you want to go to, you can apply for admission now. Check with the school about deadlines for applying for financial aid. If you're not going to college until next fall, file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) until after January 1. If you're going to start college before July 1, file this year's FAFSA as soon as possible.

Vocabulary

Admissions and financial aid have their own vocabulary, so you may see these words:

College: Any school that offers education after high school or a subdivision of a university, like the College of Business.

Higher education: Any education after high school. We usually use college.

Institution: Any school. We use college.

Postbaccalaureate: After a bachelor's degree.

Postsecondary: Education after high school.

Proprietary school: What most people call a trade school, so most of the time you'll see trade school in this book.

University: A school that offers advanced such as a master's. We usually use college.

When you see "school" in Getting In, we're nearly always talking about a school that offers postsecondary classes, not high school.

BE PREPARED

You must meet the minimum diploma requirements to graduate from high school and the precollege curriculum to be admitted by a Kentucky public university.

For more information about the minimum diploma requirements, write to Michael Miller, Kentucky Department of Education, Capital Plaza Tower, 500 Mero Street, Frankfort, KY 40601 or call 502.564.2106.

For more information about the precollege curriculum requirements, write Jevonda Greer at the Council on Postsecondary Education, 1024 Capital Center Drive, Suite 320, Frankfort, KY 40601; call 502.573.1555; or e-mail jevonda.greer@ky.gov.

Your board of education may substitute other courses for the requirements of these courses under certain conditions. If you have questions about your board's policy, talk with your guidance counselor.

Subject	Minimum Diploma Requirements* Source: Kentucky Department of Education	Precollege Curriculum Source: Council on Postsecondary Education
Language Arts	4 credits: English I, II, III, and IV	4 credits: English I, II, III, and IV or AP English
Mathematics	3 credits: Algebra I, geometry, and one elective	3 credits: Algebra I, II, and geometry
Science	3 credits from the following content areas: Life science, physical science, and earth/space science	3 credits: Credits to include life science, physical science, and earth/space science (at least one lab course)
Social Studies	3 credits from the following content areas: U.S. history, economics, government, world geography, and world civilization	3 credits from: U.S. history, economics, government, world geography, and world civilization

Foreign Language		2 credits in the same foreign language or demonstrated competency
Electives	7 credits	5 credits: (3 rigorous) Recommended strongly: 1 or more courses that develop computer literacy

* Current requirements through graduating class of 2011.

Rigorous electives must be at least as challenging as the courses required in the minimum high school graduation requirements. These electives should be in social studies, science, math, English and language arts, arts and humanities, foreign language, and above the introductory level in agriculture, industrial technology, business, marketing, family and consumer sciences, health sciences, and technology education and career pathways. Electives in physical education and health are limited to one-half unit each.

DON'T stress THE TEST

Standardized tests: You probably don't much care for them. Unfortunately, you'll most likely have to take one to get into college. You're a senior, so you've probably taken the NMSQT and the PSAT. You may already have taken the ACT or SAT.

Most colleges in Kentucky require the ACT or SAT, with the ACT being the most widely used. One good thing about taking the ACT or SAT is that you can earn a KEES bonus based on how well you do. Remember: The bonus is based on the highest composite score you get on a test you take before you graduate.

What's the difference between the ACT and SAT?

The ACT has multiple-choice questions in English, math, reading and science reasoning, plus an optional writing test. For more information, visit www.actstudent.org.

The SAT has three sections: critical reading, math and writing. The SAT Subject Test consists of one-hour tests in specific subjects. Check with the school you plan to attend to see if any are required. For more information or to register online, visit www.collegeboard.com.

Some schools may want you to take one of the following tests:

The ACT ASSET is a series of short placement tests. It's used primarily at community colleges. For more information, visit www.act.org/asset/index.html.

The ACT Computerized Adaptive Placement Assessment and Support System (COMPASS) is a series of tests in mathematics, reading, writing skills and English as a second language. COMPASS is accepted or required by some two-year schools. For more information, visit www.act.org/compass/index.html.

The Career Programs Assessment (CPAT) measures basic skills in language, reading and arithmetic and takes about an hour to complete. Trade schools use this test. For more information, visit www.act.org/cpat/index.html.

The best way to prepare for the ACT and SAT is to take challenging courses in high school, study and learn. There are other things you can do that'll help. You can take practice tests online, or you can buy practice tests for use at home. Some high schools and colleges offer ACT/SAT prep classes for free or a small fee. Familiarize yourself with the sections and directions. Get plenty of rest the night before, and eat a good breakfast that morning. Remember to take your No. 2 pencils and an ID.

When you're taking the test, remember that the ACT doesn't count off for a wrong answer, so it's OK to guess if you have absolutely no clue what the right answer is. But don't guess on the SAT, which counts off for wrong answers.

AP, IB OR CLEP?

There are some things you can do before or during college that will give you a head start.

Advanced Placement (AP) and International Baccalaureate (IB) courses can earn you a Commonwealth Diploma. This is awarded to seniors who complete at least 22 credit units, meet all minimum requirements of the Precollege Curriculum and get a grade of “C” or better in four Advanced Placement (AP) or International Baccalaureate (IB) courses in English, science and a foreign language, plus another AP/IB course. Students must also complete three AP or IB exams in those subject areas. These courses could also count as dual credit for both high school graduation and college. Check with both your high school guidance counselor and the colleges you are interested in attending for more information. AP or IB courses may also be available through the Kentucky Virtual High School, by independent study or at a college or university. For more information about AP, visit www.collegeboard.com/student/testing/ap/about.html. For more information about IB, visit www.ibo.org.

The College-Level Examination Program® (CLEP®), which offers tests for many subjects taken during the first two years of college, lets you get credit for or get out of taking certain undergraduate courses. Visit www.collegeboard.com/student/testing/clep/about.html for more information.

Bachelor's Degree	4–5 years	The most common are the BA, usually awarded in the humanities and arts, and the BS, often awarded in scientific and technical fields.
Master's Degree	Bachelor's degree plus at least 1 year	Teachers in Kentucky's public schools are required to get a master's degree.
Doctoral Degree	Bachelor's degree plus at least 3 years	Programs usually consist of course work, independent research and dissertation or other formal presentation.
First Professional Degree	6 or more years (including at least 2 years of college for entrance)	These include degrees in dentistry, law, medicine, pharmacy

SCHOOL CHOICES

Which college you choose will depend on how you answer questions such as:

- Do I want to be close to home?
- Do I want the greater choices at a large university or the personal environment of a smaller school?
- What school has the best program in the major I'm interested in?
- Do I want to start at a community college to get the basics out of the way first?
- How much can my family and I afford to spend on my education?

No matter what your answer, you'll probably be able to find a school that fits you. And there's help, just as close as your computer. You can go to GoHigherKY.org/Select/MatchAsst/ and enter your preferences. Wait a few seconds, and you'll get a list of Kentucky schools that most closely match what you're looking for.

Here are brief, general descriptions of the different types of colleges.

Public universities: Generally, these provide the greatest variety of programs. All offer undergraduate and graduate degrees, and some offer professional degrees in medicine, dentistry, law and other fields. Some also offer associate's degrees.

If you want a great education for less money and don't mind having some large classes, this might be just the place for you.

Your on-campus social opportunities are usually greater too. From sororities and fraternities to clubs and major sporting events, the choices are numerous.

Private colleges and universities: If you like smaller classes and greater access to faculty, you might want to consider one of Kentucky's private universities and colleges.

These schools all offer bachelor's degrees, while some also offer associate's and advanced degrees. Some private schools have joint programs with public universities in specialized fields.

Private schools generally cost more than public universities, but financial aid is available to help with the costs.

Because they're usually smaller than public universities, you may have more opportunities to participate in sports, music groups and other activities.

Public two-year colleges: You may want to continue your education at one of the state's community and technical colleges. You can follow several paths there. One leads to an associate's degree that prepares you for finishing a bachelor's degree. Other paths prepare you for entering the workforce. These can take from six months to two years to complete. Courses you take at community and technical colleges can transfer to a four-year college for credit if you want a bachelor's degree.

A big advantage of going this route is that you can usually find a two-year school near you, meaning you can save money by living at home.

Career and trade schools: If you're looking for a fast track to a career, one of these might be your best choice. Career and trade schools, which are more properly called proprietary schools, are privately owned and licensed. They offer programs in business, trade, technical, industrial and related areas. Some schools offer only one area of study; others offer programs in several areas.

Distance learning: Distance learning lets you take courses and even earn degrees without the traditional on-campus experience. The term includes courses and degrees offered through television, correspondence, CDs, interactive satellite and the Internet.

Online courses are offered through the Kentucky Virtual University. Another possibility is the Electronic Campus of the Southern Regional Education Board. KET offers telecourses for college credit. For more information about these options, see page 14.

Some schools also offer classes at locations other than their main campus, meaning you may find some offered where you live. Check with your guidance counselor or the college for more information.

OTHER STUFF

OK, you've decided to go to college and picked the school. What next?

Get an application for admission from the school's admissions office or website. Complete and return the application. Pay attention to deadlines. Addresses, phone numbers, websites and e-mail addresses are provided in Chapter 3. Deadlines for each school are also provided in Chapter 3.

Have your transcript sent to the school. Get a housing application if you're going to live on campus and submit it as soon as possible. Find out about deposits, orientation and registering for classes. After you've been accepted, notify the school of your decision and let the other schools you've applied to know you won't attend.

If you have questions or don't understand something, ask your parents, guidance counselor or the admissions director at the school.

Now's the time to use the information about tests from page 7. See Chapter 3 for the school you're planning to attend and see what tests are required and the deadlines for submitting the results. Be sure to confirm this information with the school. If you haven't taken the tests, check the chart on page 9 to find out dates, registration deadlines and fees. If you've taken the tests, check with the school to make sure it has your results. It's up to you to make sure you've taken the correct tests and that the results have been reported.

Let's complicate the process a little bit. If you plan to start college at one public school and transfer to another, use the Kentucky transfer tools to help you transfer your course work more easily.

Early Decision Early Action

In Early Decision, you make a commitment to enroll in a school if you're admitted. You have to withdraw all other applications and make a nonrefundable deposit. One possible disadvantage to Early Decision is that it may mean you don't have any leverage in negotiating a better financial aid package.

With Early Action, you apply to your preferred school and receive a decision before the normal response date.

For more information about Early Decision and Early Action, contact the admissions office of the school you're interested in attending. You can also contact the National Association for College Admission Counseling, 1631 Prince Street, Alexandria, VA 22314-2818; call 800.822.6285 or 703.836.2222; or visit www.nacacnet.org/MemberPortal/ForStudents/.

If you're just starting college or you're returning to college and haven't decided on a major, check out the General Education Transfer Policy at GoHigherKy.org/planning/transfer. With proper planning, you can transfer general education credits to any public university in Kentucky — without losing credits.

If you've picked your area of study, a transfer framework may be right for you. These frameworks guarantee that at least 60 hours of course work will transfer to any public university in Kentucky that offers your chosen major.

Some schools have special transfer arrangements that let students who complete an associate degree transfer credits to a bachelor's degree program at a public university in Kentucky. Check with a college advisor to find out what works for you.

To plan your college course work and make sure you're taking the right courses, check out the Course Applicability Systems (CAS) at GoHigherKY.org/planning/transfer.

You should also consult college catalogs and your advisor or counselor to learn more about what's required for your major. You can also find information about transferring at GoHigherKY.org under "plan for college" or at www.cpe.state.ky.us under "For Students."

What about online learning? You can earn certificates and degrees online through the Kentucky Virtual University (KYVU), the state's official virtual campus. The courses and programs are offered by schools in Kentucky and other states and are accessed by logging on to www.kyvu.org. If you register through KYVU, you'll be billed and will make payments to the school that offers those courses. You will receive your certificate or degree from the school that offers the program. KYVU offers online registration; technical support 24 hours a day, 7 days a week; and a call center with evening and Sunday hours.

The Kentucky Virtual Library (KYVL), an online library, is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and offers full-text online periodicals and electronic databases. If you have a library card from a Kentucky library, you can access KYVL's databases. For more information, visit www.kyvl.org.

If the program you're looking for isn't available from KYVU, it may be offered through the Southern Regional Electronic Campus. The Electronic Campus is a service of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB), of which Kentucky is a member.

For more information about the Electronic Campus and an up-to-date list of programs, visit www.electroniccampus.org. For more information about the Southern Regional Education Board, visit www.sreb.org.

If you're taking online courses, you need to check with the school about financial aid. Federal rules are different but are changing.

WRITING TIPS

The Admissions Essay

If you apply to a private college, you may have to write a brief admissions essay. The essay lets admissions officers learn more about you and find out how well you write.

Some colleges will give you a topic or ask you to choose from several topics. Others will let you pick the topic yourself.

If you pick the topic yourself, write something that shows who you are. You don't want to write about how the war on terrorism has affected you (unless you or a member of your family was directly involved). Pick a topic that will give the admissions officer insight into your thoughts and abilities — and that will make the officer say, “We want this student on our campus.”

“Keep the reader in mind — be original,” said an admissions officer at one private school. “The admissions staff member reads hundreds of essays. What will make yours stand out? Avoid topics that everyone else will write about.”

After you've written a creative essay that lets the reader know about you, you need to polish it. That means proofread your essay and ask your English teacher or counselor to look it over.

You can pay an advisor to help with your essay, but that most admissions officers can tell when your essay has been done by a professional.

Above all, follow directions. Many students don't pay attention to the guidelines, and not following directions may cost you the chance to attend the school you really want to go to.

Be a winner—use your own words

While we're on the subject of writing, let's talk about plagiarism, which is taking someone else's words and passing them off as your own.

With the Internet, it's easy to find sources to copy and paste into a research paper. You can even buy papers online. But it's also easy for professors to go to websites, type in a key phrase and see if they get any matches.

Your work is supposed to be your work. If you're taking information and arguments from other people, you need to give them credit.

Colleges take academic integrity seriously. If you get caught plagiarizing, about the easiest you can get off with is a zero on that paper. You can also get kicked out of school. That's how seriously colleges take plagiarism.

WHERE'S THE MONEY?

You've decided to go to college, you've decided which school you want to go to, you've sent in your application and you've checked on all the deadlines and orientations. Now the million dollar question — How do I pay for this? The answers to many of your questions will be addressed in this chapter. Don't forget that your best source of financial aid information will be the financial aid office of the school you plan to attend.

Don't hide — take action. The school of your dreams may not be out of reach. Research the availability of financial aid. You may qualify for financial help based on many different things including academic achievement, athletic skill, musical ability or simply financial need. Contact the financial aid office at the school you want to attend to find out what's available.

A formula set by Congress is used to calculate financial aid. To find out what state and federal aid you qualify for, you and your parents need to fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). There may be other forms you'll need to fill out, so be sure you check with the school before submitting your application.

The 2006–2007 estimated costs (tuition and fees, room and board) for most Kentucky colleges are included in Chapter 3. For out-of-state schools, consult The College Cost Book or The College Handbook in your school library or counselor's office.

Check with the school you want to attend to find out the latest costs and what kind of financial aid package it's offering you. It might not cost you any more to go to a high-priced school than a lower-priced school. You won't know unless you ask. You can compare the costs of different schools by using the Package Evaluation in the back of the book.

THE FINANCIAL AID MAZE

Conquering the financial aid maze isn't as difficult as you might believe. We can answer some of the questions and start you heading in the right direction. Even though a college education isn't cheap, it's more affordable than you think. As we discussed on the previous page, financial aid comes in many forms. More than likely, you'll qualify for more than one type. Let's look at some common questions and see if we can provide helpful answers.

Who gives financial aid?

You and your parents are expected to pay as much as you can toward your college expenses. But you may also be able to get help from the state and federal governments, your college, and private businesses and organizations.

How is financial aid awarded?

It's awarded based on financial need (need-based aid) or on academic, athletic or other talent (merit-

Types of Financial Aid

Grants: Awards based on need that do not need to be repaid.

Scholarships: Awards based on some kind of special achievement, either academic, athletic or service. These are merit-based and do not need to be repaid.

Work-study: Part-time employment that lets a student earn money toward a college education either on or off campus.

Student loans: Money borrowed, either from a bank, the government or a school. A student loan must be repaid. However, low interest rates are available, and repayment doesn't start until you've either left school or graduated.

Conversion scholarships: Scholarships that require you to provide certain services for a period of time. If you don't, you have to repay the money with interest.

Waivers: An arrangement offered by some schools to eliminate certain costs for students who meet certain qualifications.

Military benefits: Financial aid offered to individuals (or their dependents) who were, are or will be in the U.S. armed forces.

Prepaid tuition: A contract guaranteeing fully paid tuition for a fixed number of credit hours at a participating school. You have to pay a certain amount up front.

National service award: An award received for education expenses in return for national or community service.

based aid). Most financial aid is need-based but is often awarded in combination with merit-based awards.

Who develops the financial aid process?

Generally, your school's financial aid office develops your financial aid package based on guidelines and law. The package usually includes grants, scholarships, work-study and loans and depends on what funds are available.

Where can I get financial aid information?

Free financial aid information can come from your guidance counselor, financial aid officers of the schools you're interested in attending and www.kheaa.com. More information can be found on pages 25–26.

How do I apply?

You have to file the FAFSA to be considered for an award from these state and federal student aid programs: CAP and KTG Grants, KHEAA Teacher Scholarship, Federal Stafford Loan, Federal Pell Grant, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, Federal Work-Study and Federal Perkins Loan.

If you have any questions or need help completing the FAFSA or to find out if other application forms are required, check with the financial aid office at the school you plan to attend. Read the instructions on all forms carefully and follow them to the letter.

Am I “Dependent” or “Independent”?

Most students entering college straight from high school are considered dependent students. For the 2006–2007 academic year, you're a dependent student unless at least one of the following applies to you:

- You were born before January 1, 1983.
- You're married.
- You're enrolled in a master's or doctorate program during the 2006–2007 school year.
- You have dependents who will receive more than half their support from you through June 30, 2007.
- You're an orphan or ward of the court (or were a ward of the court until age 18).
- You're a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces. “Veteran” includes a student who attended a U.S. military academy who was released under a condition other than dishonorable.

If any of the above apply to you, you're considered an independent student, which means you won't have to include your parents' financial information on the FAFSA. Your school may ask you to submit proof of your independent status before you can receive any federal student aid. If you think you have unusual circumstances that would make you independent even though none of the above criteria apply to you, talk with a financial aid officer at the school you plan to attend.

Family Considerations

What can I do if my parents claimed me as a tax exemption last tax year but gave me no money or support?

Although you don't meet the federal definition of an independent student, you should discuss your situation with the financial aid director of the school you plan to attend to find out if he or she can help you.

If I have a brother or sister attending college, will my EFC be less?

Probably. As a rule, if two family members (other than a parent) are in college at least half-time, the EFC is divided by two.

If my parents are divorced or separated, which one should provide the information for the FAFSA?

The parent with whom you lived the most during the past 12 months should complete the application. If you lived with each parent an equal length of time or lived with neither parent, the parent providing the most financial support for you during the last year should complete the form.

If I have a legal guardian, does (s)he have to provide financial information on the FAFSA?

No, even if that guardian has been directed by a court to support the applicant.

When do I apply?

As soon as possible after January 1. The first thing you have to do is fill out your FAFSA using the previous year's tax data. The earlier you file, the better your chance of getting financial aid. Check with the financial aid offices of the schools you're interested in to find out their deadlines or visit www.fafsa.ed.gov for more information.

What is need analysis and how is it determined?

Need analysis is used to determine what type and how much aid you can receive by subtracting your expected family contribution (EFC) from the total cost of attendance.

The EFC is figured from the information on the FAFSA using a formula set by Congress. The result is the amount you and your family are expected to pay toward your college costs for that year. If you're an independent student, the EFC is figured on your own financial resources (and those of your spouse, if you're married). (See page 23.)

What if I don't qualify for financial aid this year?

Reapply each year. Things can change: programs, your family's financial conditions — lots of things.

What is "satisfactory academic progress"?

To continue receiving aid under some programs, you have to meet the minimum requirements to graduate within a specified time according to your school's policy. Check with the school to find out what the requirements are.

What does financial aid cover?

Financial aid must be used to pay the costs of education, which may include:

- Direct costs — tuition, fees
- Indirect costs — transportation, housing, food, personal expenses

How much can I get?

You can't get more need-based aid than the total cost of attendance minus your EFC. So, if the total cost of attendance is $12,000 and your EFC is $7,000, the most you can get in need-based aid is $5,000. That doesn't mean you will get $5,000 in aid. It just means you are eligible for up to $5,000 in need-based aid. You can use KHEAA's interactive College Aid Calculator, developed by Think Ahead Inc. of Dresden, Maine, to get an estimated EFC. The calculator can be found at www.kheaa.com. You don't need to use your Social Security number, and the information is deleted as soon as the EFC is calculated. Remember, this is only an estimate. Your actual EFC will be determined from the information on your FAFSA.

When will I know how much I will get?

If you apply for state and federal aid between January and April, you should find out in late spring or early summer.

The U.S. Department of Education operates a toll-free telephone service for students, parents and educators who have questions about federal student assistance programs.

Call 800.433.3243 (800.4FED.AID). People who use a TTY or TDD device should call the Federal Information Relay Service at 800.730.8913.

What financial aid programs use information from the FAFSA to determine how much I get?

These federal programs use the information you submit on the FAFSA: Academic Competitiveness Grants, Federal Pell Grants, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, National Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent Grants, Federal Perkins Loans, Federal PLUS Loans, Federal Stafford Loans, and Federal Work-Study.

These state programs use information from the FAFSA: College Access Program Grants, Kentucky Tuition Grants, KHEAA Teacher Scholarship, Osteopathic Medicine Scholarship, and KHEAA Work-Study.

More information about these federal and state programs can be found on pages 33–44.

In addition, many colleges use the information from the FAFSA in awarding grants and scholarships administered by the college. These grants and scholarships are what is called institutional aid.

What is the school's refund policy?

Every school that awards federal student aid must have a written refund policy and give you a copy of that policy if you request it. It's important to find out (before you apply for admission) if you can get a refund if you withdraw from school before you get your degree or certificate.

What is an enrollment contract?

Some schools use an enrollment contract to explain what you can expect them to give you for your money. Read the contract carefully before you sign it. A representative of the school may promise you things that aren't in the contract, such as help finding a job. If the representative makes you a promise, ask him or her to write the promise on the contract and sign and date it. A promise is usually not enforceable in court unless it's in writing.

Are scholarships taxable?

Some are, some aren't. The basic requirement for a scholarship to be tax free, known as a "qualified" scholarship, is that the recipient be a candidate for a degree.

A qualified scholarship is any amount used for tuition and required fees, books, supplies and equipment.

Any amount received for incidental expenses is not a tax-free, qualified scholarship. Incidental expenses include expenses for room and board, travel, research and clerical help.

For more information, call the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) at 800.829.1040 or visit www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p970.pdf to download the free Publication 970 Tax Benefits for Education. This and other free publications are also available from the IRS by calling 800.829.3676 or by visiting www.irs.gov/formspubs/index.html. If you're still not sure, consult your family's tax advisor.

What about tax credits and deductions?

There are several ways your parents can save money on taxes when it comes to paying for college.

The federal government offers the Hope credit, the lifetime learning credit, the tuition and fees deduction and the student loan interest deduction. Kentucky offers the Kentucky Tuition Tax Credit.

The tuition and fees deduction and the student loan interest deduction are adjustments to income. This means they reduce the amount of your income subject to tax and you can claim them even if you don't itemize deductions.

Each of these credits and deductions has special rules and income limitations. For more information on educational tax benefits, refer to Publication 970, Tax Benefits for Education. You can order this publication by calling 800.829.3676, or you can download it from www.irs.gov. For more information about these benefits, call the IRS at 1.800.829.1040.

Hope Credit

If your parents paid qualified education expenses for themselves or a dependent, they may be able to claim a Hope credit. This credit is available for the first two years of college.

Lifetime Learning Credit

If your parents or a dependent is enrolled in a degree program or is taking college courses to acquire or improve job skills, they may be able to claim a lifetime learning credit.

Kentucky Tuition Tax Credit

Kentuckians can deduct a credit of 25% of the federal Hope or Lifetime Learning Credits up to $500 for tuition or related expenses for undergraduate enrollment at an eligible Kentucky college.

Tuition and Fees Deduction

The tuition and fees deduction can reduce the amount of income subject to tax. Parents may be able to deduct qualified education expenses paid during the year for themselves or a dependent. The expenses must be for college.

Student Loan Interest Deduction

You can deduct up to $2,500 per year on your federal taxes for interest paid on your student loan.

TIPS, HELPFUL HINTS

Don't miss out on financial aid because you didn't know where to look. Here are some tips that can help you to increase your chances of obtaining the most financial aid you can.

Talk with your guidance counselor, who's an excellent resource and can tell you about financial aid in general and where to look for help.

Check your high school or public library for books about sources of student aid.

Make good grades in high school. By doing so, you can earn money for college through the KEES program. Students who make a 2.5 or higher GPA can earn scholarships for college. Doing well will also help you qualify for other scholarships and grants.

Learn about student loans. You should first try for aid you don't have to repay. However, most students will have to take out loans to pay for college. If you're going to need student loans, you need to make sure you get the least expensive ones you can. That means you need to learn some terms and make comparisons. For the low-down on student loans, see pages 45–49.

Talk with financial aid officers at the schools you're interested in attending. They can inform you about aid programs available through the school. See Chapter 3 for names, addresses and other information.

Search for free information about scholarships and other student aid sources at GoHigherKY.org.

Visit www.kheaa.com, which features information about KHEAA financial aid programs and services, KHEAA publications and links to other financial aid sites. You can also access the most current information about your KHEAA grant, loan or KEES award by setting up a Zip Access account.

Write to organizations connected with your field of interest which may have financial aid available. These organizations are listed in directories available in public libraries.

Visit the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators' home page at www.nasfaa.org. This site has lots of information about scholarships, scams and personal finances.

Watch newspapers for scholarships offered through local community service organizations, businesses, clubs, unions, churches, fraternal groups, etc. Contact the group for more information.

Read Funding Education Beyond High School: The Guide to Federal Student Aid a U.S. Department of Education (ED) handbook containing valuable information about student financial assistance. Copies should be available at public libraries, counselor offices, and online at <http://studentaid.ed.gov/students/attachments/siteresources/StudentGuide.pdf>. For more information, call the ED's Federal Student Aid Information Center at 800.4FED.AID (800.433.3243) or visit www.ed.gov.

Check with community organizations and civic groups such as the American Legion, YMCA, 4-H Club, Kiwanis, Jaycees, Chamber of Commerce and Girl or Boy Scouts. Foundations, religious organizations, fraternities or sororities and town or city clubs are some other possible sources of aid.

Consult Affording Higher Education, a KHEAA reference book containing nearly 4,000 sources of student financial aid for Kentucky students. Copies of this and other student aid materials are available at public libraries, counselor offices and www.kheaa.com.

Hop onboard KHEAA's College Info Road Show. This mobile classroom visits Kentucky schools and community events and provides materials, publications, live Internet access, a guided tour through the interactive GoHigherKY.org website and information from financial aid experts. Take advantage of these free services when the College Info Road Show visits your area.

AVOID THE LURE OF SCAMS

Don't be taken in by something that looks too good to be true. Let us help guide you around the trap of scholarship scams.

You will probably need financial aid to help pay for college. The money is out there, but make sure your sources are reliable or you could find out the hard way that not everyone is honest!

Be wary of any company that offers to do the work for you — at a price, of course. It sounds so easy: Just fill out a form and sit and wait for all these scholarships to fall in your lap. Scholarship search companies may charge hundreds of dollars to give you a list of scholarships for which you can apply.

There are some easy steps you can take to get the same information for free.

STEP 1

Start with your guidance counselor, who can help you find many sources of student aid for which you may qualify.

STEP 2

Contact someone in the financial aid office at each school you're considering. That person can tell you about the financial aid programs offered by the school.

STEP 3

You should also attend any free financial aid workshops sponsored by your high school, local colleges and universities or the Kentucky Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, such as College Goal Sunday. Don't confuse these free events with events sponsored by companies that offer services for a fee.

STEP 4

Before paying a fee for financial aid information, check out the company by contacting the Better Business Bureau; the Kentucky Attorney General's office, Consumer Protection Division, 1024 Capital Center Drive, Frankfort, KY 40601, 888.432.9257, ag.ky.gov/consumer/; or the Attorney General in the state where the company is located.

STEP 5

Check out the Internet. It can help you find scholarship sources. You can do that yourself by accessing any of several free scholarship search sites available on the Web. GoHigherKY.org has a free scholarship search feature.

If you're going to use the Internet, remember that websites are not regulated by any agency. It doesn't take much to start a fantastic-looking website, so you can't judge the site simply by the way it looks. A scam artist can set up a website, take people's money for a few weeks, shut down the site and disappear.

Don't gamble with your future. The Federal Trade Commission cautions students to be especially skeptical about scholarship search companies and sites that make any of these claims:

“You’ve been selected by a national foundation to receive a scholarship.”

Check with your guidance counselor or visit The Foundation Center website, www.fdncenter.org, to find out if the foundation is legitimate. Check with your guidance counselor if you're notified that you're a finalist in a scholarship contest you didn't enter.

“We'll do all the work.”

The company may send you a long list, but you'll have to fill out all the applications.

“I just need your credit card or bank account number to hold this scholarship.”

NEVER give these numbers to a person or company you're not sure about. Someone with your credit card number can charge something to your card, and someone with your bank account number can make withdrawals — without your knowledge.

“This scholarship will cost some money.”

Some legitimate scholarships do have up-front fees, but they shouldn't be more than $5 to $10.

“The scholarship is guaranteed or your money back.”

Read the fine print. To get a refund, you may have to receive a letter of rejection from every source on their list. That may be impossible to do if a scholarship on the list is no longer offered. Some unscrupulous companies even give you sources that don't exist. The fine print may state that all types of student financial aid are included, so if you get a loan and no scholarships, you still can't get your money back.

“You can't get this information anywhere else.”

Nearly all the information can be found by working with the guidance counselor and college financial aid officer, visiting the high school or public library or doing a free online scholarship search.

For more information about scholarship frauds, check out these websites:

Federal Trade Commission, www.ftc.gov

You can also file a complaint with the FTC by calling toll free 877.382.4357 or submitting an online complaint form available on the FTC website.

National Fraud Information Center, www.fraud.org

This site provides information on how to spot, stop, and report a scam. You can report one online or call the center toll free at 800.876.7060.

FinAid, www.finaid.org/scholarships/scams.phtml

This is another site that provides information on how to identify and report scams.

Remember, however, that the absence of complaints may not mean the company or foundation is legitimate—it may just be so new that no one has filed a complaint yet.

GoHigherKY.ORG

You can now check out tons of college information at one website. By going to GoHigherKY.org, you can explore Kentucky schools, enter your preference of enrollment size, student-to-faculty ratio, costs and other criteria to get the best college fit. GoHigherKY.org is FREE and each month for the rest of 2006, students that set up new accounts will be entered in a drawing for an iPod.

The Academic Common Market

Did you know you might be able to go to an out-of-state school for the same cost as an in-state school? If the academic program you want is not available in Kentucky but is available in one of the Academic Common Market states, you may be able to attend there for the same cost as you would if you were a resident of that state.

About 150 schools from the following states participate in the Market at the undergraduate and graduate levels: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. Florida, North Carolina and Texas participate at the graduate level. For information about and certification for the Academic Common Market, write to Jo Carole Ellis, ACM State Coordinator, KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602-0798; call 502.696.7442; or visit cpe.ky.gov/policies/academicinit/SREB/ACM.htm and click on the Academic Common Market program listing under Related Materials.

THE FAFSA CHALLENGE

Don't let the challenge of filling out the FAFSA defeat you. Here are some helpful hints that will simplify the process.

The FAFSA is the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, and it's the form you need to fill out before you can qualify for any federal or state student aid. Not only does it need to be filled out, it needs to be filled out correctly. The financial information provided on the form will automatically be sent to the schools listed on the FAFSA and to KHEAA.

The best way is to file the FAFSA online. You can apply for student aid over the Internet at www.fafsa.ed.gov. A

At College Goal Sunday in early 2007, members of the Kentucky Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators will help students and parents complete the FAFSA. It will be held at sites across the state. Check www.kasfaa.com or watch your mailbox, local newspaper or guidance office bulletin board for more information.

brochure titled FAFSA on the Web is available from the U.S. Department of Education (ED) by calling 800.4FED.AID (800.433.3243). If you have any questions about FAFSA on the Web, call 800.4FED.AID.

You're less likely to make errors filing electronically because your answers are edited automatically. Also, you'll receive your report 7 to 14 days faster than you will with a paper FAFSA.

If you don't have a computer or access to one, check to see if the school you plan to attend has electronic FAFSA capability. If so, you should be able to apply through the financial aid office by filling out the FAFSA and bringing it to the school. The school can then enter your information and transmit it to the ED Central Processing System.

The paper FAFSA is available from high school counselors and college financial aid offices or by calling the ED. If you want to be notified when your paper FAFSA is received, fill out the postcard in the FAFSA packet and put it in the return envelope with your FAFSA. When the application is received, the FAFSA processor will stamp the card with the receipt date and location and mail it back to you.

The school's financial aid office uses the information on the FAFSA to determine whether you're eligible for need-based financial aid and, if so, for how much and what type. From this information, the school will create a financial aid package for you. Each college you list on the FAFSA will consider you for financial aid and will notify you of its decision in late spring or early summer.

FASFA — the important Puzzle Piece

KHEAA uses information from the FAFSA in making grant awards. As KHEAA receives data from the FAFSA central processor, students are sent grant notices instructing them to visit www.kheaa.com to learn their grant eligibility at all schools listed on the FAFSA.

It's important that you fill out the FAFSA correctly in order to get all the money you qualify for. Use the following steps to help with this procedure.

First: Decide if you will complete the FAFSA electronically or on paper.

Second: Gather documents you will need to refer to in completing the FAFSA. These include the following:

- Your Social Security card and driver's license.
- Your W-2 forms and federal income tax return.
- Your parents' W-2 forms and federal income tax return if you are dependent.
- Records of other untaxed income received such as Social Security benefits, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families or veteran's benefits.
- Current bank statements and records of stocks, bonds or other investments.
- Business or farm records if applicable.
- Your alien registration card if you are not a U.S. citizen.
- A blank diskette if you're applying via FAFSA on the Web. You'll need it to save your data.

Don't forget to:

- Read and follow the instructions carefully.
- Submit the FAFSA as soon as possible after January 1 of your senior year (when the family has its federal income tax preparation data) to make sure you have the best chance of receiving aid for which you're eligible.
- Keep copies of your FAFSA and a record of the date you submitted or mailed it.
- If you need to make corrections, follow the instructions on the Student Aid Report you receive in the mail and return it immediately for reprocessing.
- Read financial aid award letters carefully and comply with requests from schools for clarification or additional information as soon as possible. Submit corrections or additional information to the USDE Central Processor, so KHEAA and the administrators of other federal and school-based programs will have the information too.

Other Financial Aid Applications

- ❑ Check with the financial aid office of the school you plan to attend to find out if you should file any other applications.
- ❑ Read and follow directions. Filling out an application properly and neatly is important. You may be disqualified for failing to complete all questions, answering them incorrectly or missing the deadlines.
- ❑ Pay attention to mailing addresses and filing deadlines.
- ❑ Keep copies of everything you mail and a record of the dates you mail the materials. You might want to send your materials by registered mail, return receipt requested.
- ❑ Talk with your counselor about scholarships available in your community. If you think you may be eligible, apply for them.
- ❑ Check the school's catalog or website for descriptions of any additional scholarships or financial aid for which you may be eligible to apply. Website addresses can be found in Chapter 3.
- ❑ Apply, apply, apply. By applying for several types of aid, you increase your chances of receiving enough to pay your school costs.

FINANCIAL AID

The following pages list many of the major state and federal student aid programs available to Kentuckians. The application for many of these is the FAFSA, available at www.fafsa.ed.gov or from college financial aid offices and high school counselor offices. Help is available at http://studentaid.ed.gov/students/publications/completing_fafsa/index.html.

Due to the ever-changing climate of student aid, programs may be discontinued or changed. For the most up-to-date information, check with your high school counselor or a financial aid officer at the school you plan to attend. For more information about KHEAA programs, call 800.928.8926 or visit www.kheaa.com. KHEAA awards millions of dollars each year to thousands of Kentucky students.

- Awards: $4,000 annual maximum for undergraduates, $6,000 for graduate students. The maximum cumulative undergraduate amount is $20,000 ($8,000 for students who are not yet juniors). Graduate students can get up to another $20,000 for a maximum of $40,000.
- Application: Students must submit a FAFSA. Deadline set by the school.

KHEAA Federal Stafford Loans (FFELP)

- Eligibility: A U.S. citizen or eligible noncitizen enrolled or accepted for enrollment at least half-time in an eligible certificate or degree program at an eligible school. Students must show financial need for a subsidized loan but not for an unsubsidized loan.

- Awards: The Federal Stafford Loan amount for an academic period cannot exceed the cost of attendance (as determined by the school) minus the student’s estimated financial assistance and, if the loan is subsidized, EFC. The amount can’t exceed the loan limits for an academic year based on the student’s dependency status and grade level. Beginning July 1, 2006, the interest rate is fixed at 6.8 percent. The government pays the interest on a subsidized loan until you begin repayment. You can pay the interest on an unsubsidized loan while you are in school or have it added to the principal.

Current loan limits are:

Grade Level	Dependent Status	Independent Status
First Year	$2,625	$ 6,625
Second Year	$3,500	$ 7,500
Each Remaining Year of Undergraduate Study	$5,500	$10,500
Each Year of Graduate/ Professional Study	$8,500	$18,500

- Application: FAFSA and the Federal Stafford Loan Master Promissory Note (MPN). The MPN can be submitted and signed electronically through KHEAA’s eSign process. A paper MPN can be obtained from lender or a financial aid office. Contact the schools to which you are applying to see if they prefer an electronic or paper MPN.

KHEAA Federal PLUS Loan (FFELP)

- Eligibility: Any parent or stepparent of a dependent student enrolled or accepted for enrollment at least half-time in an eligible program at an eligible school. Graduate and professional students may also borrow PLUS Loans.
- Awards: The maximum loan amount equals the cost of education minus other financial aid received. Beginning July 1, 2006, the interest rate is fixed at 8.5 percent.
- Application: FAFSA and PLUS Loan application.

For a PLUS Loan application, contact a participating lender or the financial aid office at the school you plan to attend; write to KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602-0798; or call toll free 800.928.8926.

Some schools participate in the Federal Direct Student Loan Program instead of the Federal Family Education Loan Program administered by KHEAA. Direct Stafford and PLUS Loans have the same eligibility and award criteria as FFELP loans. If your school is a Direct Loan school, contact the financial aid office for information about how to apply.

Military Benefits

Most branches of the military offer some type of tuition assistance that lets active duty members take courses at civilian colleges during their off-duty hours. In addition, military training while on active duty can sometimes count toward college credit. After they finish active duty, veterans can take advantage of the Montgomery GI Bill to attend college. Local Armed Forces recruiting offices can provide detailed information about educational opportunities through the military.

Kentucky Air National Guard Education Assistance

Eligibility: High school graduate or GED holder and current member of the Kentucky Air National Guard.

Awards: Through the Montgomery GI Bill, students receive up to $297 each month toward an undergraduate degree. They can attend the college of their choice and receive up to 36 months of benefits and a maximum of $10,692. The Montgomery GI Bill Kicker offers an additional $350 each month for selected critical career fields and is also paid for a total of 36 months. Students receive credit for their military schooling through the Community College of the Air Force, which is transferable to many colleges in Kentucky. Starting Guard pay for one weekend of monthly training is approximately $200.16. Kentucky Air Guard membership offers a 100 percent tuition award program to all Kentucky state-supported schools (provided funds are available).

STUDENT LOAN QUESTIONS

OK, I have some questions about student loans. What do all the technical words mean and how do they apply to me? How will I know which student loan is the best?

Most students will need a student loan, so it's wise to know what all the terms mean and how they apply to you. Terms that are used in a definition but are also defined in this section are in blue.

More information about student loans can be found on the following pages. If you can't find out what you need to know here, don't be afraid to ask questions. You can get answers from your counselor, KHEAA, The Student Loan People or the financial aid office of the college you're interested in attending.

BORROWER BENEFITS — Think of these in terms of a price break you get when you buy something and a rebate you get after you buy it. A lender can charge an origination fee, while a guarantor must charge a federal default fee. Not all lenders and guarantors charge the same fees, and some, like KHEAA, don't charge a fee at all. These fees are deducted before you see the money, so the lower the fees, the more money you get to pay for college.

You can also get breaks when you start repaying your loan. Many lenders will charge you a lower interest rate if you follow certain criteria. See the information on the Best in Class, Best in Care, Best in Law and BestStart programs on pages 48–49 for examples of how this works.

FEDERAL DEFAULT FEE — It's just like car insurance. The guarantor can charge you up to 1 percent of your loan as an insurance fee. KHEAA is a guarantor, and to help you with your educational costs, does not charge an insurance fee. There is legislation in Congress that, if passed, would require guarantors to charge this fee.

GUARANTEE FEE — Also called an insurance fee, this is the same as the federal default fee.

GUARANTOR — This is like an insurance company. The guarantor, such as KHEAA, has a contract with the lender to pay off a student loan under special circumstances.

INTEREST — This is the money you pay the lender for letting you use its money to pay your school costs. It's just like the interest you pay on your car loan, only it's generally lower.

LENDER — The lender is whoever loans you the money. It can be a bank, a nonprofit state corporation, a credit union or some other financial institution.

ORIGINATION FEE — This helps cover the costs the lender has to pay for doing business with you. Lenders can charge up to a 3 percent origination fee. KHEAA does not charge an origination fee.

PRINCIPAL — This is the amount you borrow before the origination fee and federal default fee are deducted. The interest you're charged will be based on the principal.

STUDENT LOAN TIPS

Despite what you might think, you'll probably have to borrow some money in order to complete your education. However, you should research all other means of financial aid before taking out a student loan. Don't forget that a student loan has to be repaid, whether you finish your education or like the school or program you've started. You're taking on a commitment that will help improve your future but that also requires you to be responsible. By making your payments on time, you're establishing yourself as a good credit risk. This will help you later in life when you need to borrow money for another purpose, whether it's buying a car, furniture or a home. Here are some tips that will help you to borrow wisely.

Tip 1: Contact the school you plan to attend

Find out what other financial aid you qualify for before applying for a student loan. Grants, scholarships and work-study usually don't have to be repaid.

Ask the financial aid officer how much the total cost of attending school, including the estimated living expenses, is going to be.

Know what the school's refund policy is. Ask the financial aid officer or check the student handbook or class schedule.

Tip 2: Check out the job you're interested in

Find out the job opportunities in that field to make sure you'll be able to earn enough to pay back what you borrow as well as meet any other expenses you will encounter when you're in the working world. Defaulting on a student loan isn't an option, even if you can't find a job in the field you've trained for or if you don't make as much money as you thought you would. Research before committing yourself to a job where you won't earn enough money.

Check with the school about entrance counseling. The school you'll be attending is required to provide this before you receive your first Federal Stafford Loan.

Tip 3: Find out about student loans before borrowing

Borrow only what you need. Remember, you have to repay your loan. The chart on the next page shows the approximate monthly payment required on a Federal Stafford Loan depending on the interest rate.

For new borrowers who have no outstanding loans, the interest rate can't be more than 8.25 percent. Note that the chart shows the approximate monthly payment required

Federal Stafford Loan Repayment
Amount Borrowed	Estimated Monthly Payment
	6.8%
$ 5,000	$58
$10,000	$115
$15,000	$173
$20,000	$230
$25,000	$288
$30,000	$345
$35,000	$403

on each Federal Stafford Loan. For example, if you have two $5,000 loans each from a different lender, your monthly payment would be $116 ($58 to each lender). For a quick estimate of how much you will pay based on how much you have borrowed, the interest rate, and the repayment period, use the Loan Repayment Calculator found under the Quick Links feature at www.kheaa.com.

Consider getting all of your loans through one lender so you don't have to make payments to two or more lenders at the same time. This will simplify the process. The federal government requires the Master Promissory Note (MPN) for all Stafford Loans. For more information, visit www.kheaa.com/fed_mpn_home.html.

Use student loans only for educational purposes. Giving false information, forging information or using loans for any purpose other than legitimate school expenses is a crime.

Generally, you have up to 10 years to repay your student loans. The minimum monthly payment is $50. Your repayment duration and amount will be based on your loan balance. An extended repayment plan may be available if you owe more than $30,000 in student loans. Under the extended repayment plan, you can take up to 25 years to pay, depending on how much you owe.

Tip 4: What happens after the first year?

Most financial aid programs have renewal requirements and some limitations such as:

- Advancing to the next grade level.
- Requiring students to reapply each year.
- Limiting the total number of years aid can be received.

BEFORE YOU TRANSFER TO ANOTHER SCHOOL, BE SURE TO CHECK ON THE STATUS OF YOUR FINANCIAL AID.

Tip 5: Now the fun part — repayment!

When you start making payments, think about paying a little extra—a few more dollars paid each month reduces the overall amount of interest you will pay over the life of the loan. If you pay an extra $10 each month, $120 a year, the extra money is applied to the principal, which lowers the total interest you end up paying.

If you have a loan from The Student Loan People, you can receive your statements online. Go to studentloanpeople.com and sign up for EPIC.

If you have any trouble making your payments, contact your lender immediately. You may be able to postpone or reduce your payments temporarily. Before you enter repayment, you will go through exit counseling.

If you end up with more than one student loan, contact your lender or KHEAA about consolidating your student loans. For more information about Federal Consolidation Loans, contact:

LEAN ON US, FROM CLASS TO CAREER.

GET A CREDIT CARD?

You've decided to get a higher education. You've taken the time to research what school you want to attend, what subjects you want to take, what career you want to pursue and what all this is going to cost you. If you're really wise, you'll come up with a plan as to how you're going to pay for all of this. There are many avenues to pursue. Grants, loans, scholarships, jobs and parents are all possibilities. One door that will open up to you, almost as soon as you arrive on campus, is getting a credit card. Let's look at how this can impact not only your college life but your future.

What are the advantages of a credit card? The number one advantage is convenience. If you have an emergency, need to purchase something online or by telephone or need the safety of not carrying cash credit cards fit the bill. Credit cards can also help you establish a credit history. This can be either good or bad, depending on how the card is used and how it's paid. Your credit history will follow you all your life.

What are the disadvantages? The top three disadvantages are debt, debt and more debt! There are other disadvantages as well. With credit cards comes the temptation of spending more money than you have. Although $3,500 may seem like a lot, you can reach it easily when you start treating your friends to pizza, buying clothes and CDs and decorating your room. In fact, $3,500 is probably a pretty conservative number.

One avenue to explore is the use of a debit card, issued by most banks. Any time you use it, the amount will automatically be deducted from your checking account. Another option offered by some banks is a credit card that's been prepaid by your parents. They're notified every time you make a transaction, and you can only use the amount of money that's "loaded" into the card.

If you rack up large amounts of credit card debt and can't pay it off, it can affect your credit rating for years. A poor credit rating can affect many areas of your life, including getting a job, buying a house or even finishing school. Before you get a card, decide what you're going to use it for and how you're going to pay for it.

If you decide you still want to have a credit card, use it wisely. Be sure you review the bill once it comes in and pay it before the deadline. Only charge as much as you can pay off when the bill comes. If you have to charge more, pay more than the minimum to avoid having interest build up.

Something to consider . . . if you're 18 years old, charge $3,500 at 18 percent interest, and only make the minimum payment, you will be 45 years old by the time you pay it off. Not only that, but you will have paid almost $8,000 in interest on top of the original $3,500. If you charge even more than that, it multiplies dramatically.

How can you avoid getting yourself into trouble with this "convenient" money. One thing to remember is that a credit card is not free money — it all has to be paid back — with interest.

Don't let credit card debt and a poor credit rating haunt your future. Use good judgment. Either decide not to use a credit card or to use it sparingly. It's your future that's at stake; make it a good one.

COMPARISON TOOLS

Even though it seems like your senior year has just started, it won't be too long before you'll be applying for college. Let's use our imaginations and walk through this process. You've applied to several different schools and been accepted by all of them. How do you know which school is offering you the best financial aid package? What if the school you want to attend of your dreams instead of settling for another one? There's one way to find out: Compare.

Your first question might be what exactly is an award letter and what does it contain? An award letter will usually show the total cost of attendance — what it costs to go to that school for one year, including tuition, fees, room, meals, books, supplies, transportation and personal expenses. Keep in mind that we're talking about a school year, which doesn't include summer school.

It may also show how much your family is expected to pay toward those costs, the expected family contribution (EFC). The EFC is subtracted from the total cost of attendance to get your financial need.

The letter will then list various sources of financial aid offered to pay for the costs not covered by the EFC. You can accept or reject any or all of those proposed sources.

Let's look at sample awards from two four-year colleges. These are purely fictional.

Financial Need	School A	School B	Awards	School A	School B
Total Cost	$12,500	$17,500	School Grant	$ 0	$ 2,000
EFC	5,000	5,000	Federal Pell Grant	0	0
Local Scholarship	500	500	State Grant	0	0
Financial Need	7,000	12,000	KEES	1,750	1,750
			Federal Perkins Loan	1,500	3,625
			Federal Stafford Loan	2,125	2,625
			Work-Study	1,625	2,000
			Total Award	7,000	12,000

There are some things that you need to take into consideration. One of these is how much of this will have to be paid back and another is what the total debt load will be after four years of school.

School A's package includes $3,625 in student loans. That's 51.8% of the total package. Over four years, that adds up to $14,500 in loans you'll be responsible for paying back.

School B's package, on the other hand, includes $6,250 in student loans, which is 52.1% of the total package, not much different from School A's percentage. But over four years, that adds up to $25,000 you'll have to repay.

Something else to consider is that you and your parents are expected to come up with $5,000 (the EFC). If you have that money, either from your parents' income or savings, that's great. However, remember we're talking about $5,000 a year with a minimum of four years, which is a total of $20,000. If neither you nor your parents have that kind of money, then you'll have to get it from somewhere, most likely through a loan. You have various loan sources available. There's the Federal PLUS Loan that your parents can apply for, and there are also private loans, such as The Student Loan People Advantage Loan.

Another item on your award letter is the work-study award. This is a great program; however, keep in mind that most work-study is paid at the federal minimum wage, so those awards represent a considerable investment in time for a full-time college student. Remember, you'll need to study two to three hours for each hour of class, so being a full-time student will take up as much time as a full-time job. Will you be able to juggle a part-time job as well as a full-time study schedule? Many do, but remember that your first priority should be your schoolwork.

Maybe you've applied for other scholarships but won't know if you've won one until after receiving the award letter. You need to see how each school handles additional scholarship funds. Some will decrease the school grant by that much, while others will decrease both suggested loans and grants. That can make a big difference in how much you will have to pay back.

Let's take one more look at the awards on the previous page. Let's suppose that School B didn't give you a school grant. In that case, the unmet need would be $2,000. That's called a gap – the difference between the aid the school is offering and how much financial need a student has. Again, that's money your family will have to come up with if you choose School B.

Maybe the school of your dreams is a possibility, but then again maybe not. So, don't just sign an award letter without comparing it with all your other options. One of the tools you can use to find out which school is making you the best offer is the chart in the back of the book. Use it to compare financial aid packages.

Comparing Costs

When it comes to comparing the costs of various colleges, remember that on the broadest level, costs are divided into billable costs and nonbillable costs.

Billable costs are what you have to pay to start college. At the least, they include tuition and fees. If you're going to live in school-provided housing, billable costs will also include room and board. They're called "billable" because the school will bill you for them.

Nonbillable costs include everything else — textbooks, supplies (such as pens and notebooks), transportation and personal items (soap, shampoo, clothes, entertainment, laundry, etc.).

It's in the room and board and the nonbillable costs that you can save money, sometimes lots of money, by smart shopping. Textbooks are expensive, so you can save money by buying used books whenever possible. You can buy many textbooks online. Instead of buying notebooks and pens at college bookstores, buy them at discount stores.

If you're going to a school nearby, you can save room and board by commuting from home. It's also possible to cut down on room and board costs by sharing an apartment with friends. However, some colleges require freshmen to live on campus their first year, sometimes first two years.

So, unless you don't have to worry about how to pay for college, it's a good idea to compare schools' billable and nonbillable costs when you're checking out colleges. Once you've done that, you and your parents can sit down and discuss ways to save on nonbillable costs.

To find out the billable costs for the school you're interested in attending, see the school pages in Chapter 3.

Questions You Should Ask the Financial Aid Office

OK, we're almost through here. On this page, let's look at what you need to know about costs and financial aid from the schools you're applying to.

First of all, you need to know what financial aid forms you have to fill out and what the deadlines are. You can pretty much assume you'll have to fill out the FAFSA, but some schools also have a form to fill out if you want to apply for school-administered aid programs. In fact, you should ask the financial aid office about any special aid programs it has in addition to state and federal programs.

Secondly, you need to know how much it will cost to attend each school for a year. For comparison purposes, you should ask the financial aid office to break the costs down by:

- Tuition.
- Fees.
- Room.
- Board.
- Books and supplies.
- Transportation.
- Personal expenses.

In Chapter 3 you'll find costs for Kentucky colleges. You need to look at those costs closely and pay special attention to any footnotes. The footnotes provide important information.

You should ask the financial aid office how it treats outside scholarships (see top of page 52) and how work-study will affect your bill. You should also ask if financial need will affect the school's decision about admitting you.

Other things you need to check on include:

- Whether your award will be reconsidered if your family's financial situation changes.
- Whether you can expect roughly the same financial aid package each year or if the package includes one-time-only awards.
- How much of your package includes student loans and parent loans.
- What the school expects the average student loan debt of someone in your class will be.

Finally, you should ask the financial aid office for a list of everything it needs from you if you accept the package: tax returns, acceptance letter, promissory note, applications, etc.

Remember that financial aid packages are, to some extent, negotiable. State and federal programs generally have limits on how much you can receive from them, and your KEES award is a set amount. Beyond that, though, many schools have their own funds. If you really want to go to a particular school but the financial aid package isn't quite what you want, talk with someone in the financial aid office. The school may be able to come up with additional funds.

INFORMATION

The following pages provide information about costs, admissions, financial aid and majors at Kentucky colleges. In addition to the tuition and fees and the room and board costs shown, there are other costs associated with college: books, supplies, transportation and personal costs. These can range from $2,500 to $7,500 depending on where you go and your lifestyle.

Information in this chapter will almost certainly change before you start college. For the most up-to-date information, contact the school you plan to attend.

Included in this section of this chapter is information about Kentucky four-year and two-year degree-granting colleges and universities. Four-year, degree-granting schools offer bachelor's degrees, and many offer advanced degrees as well. Two-year, degree-granting schools offer associate degrees, and many also offer certificates and diplomas. The final section has information about trade schools whose programs don't lead to two- or four-year degrees.

Trade Schools

What most people call trade schools are technically called proprietary schools. We've used the general term for the most part in Getting In, but you'll sometimes see "proprietary" in the following pages. The agencies below license trade schools in Kentucky and can be contacted for more information about the training programs listed in this section as well as those of other trade schools not included in Getting In.

Each school included in Getting In: Your Guide to Higher Education in Kentucky must participate in a Title IV program and a KHEAA program or be a public school. The information in the following pages was provided by the schools. Some Kentucky schools that provide financial aid may not meet KHEAA's guidelines for inclusion in Getting In or may not have responded to KHEAA's request for information about their school. Students attending these schools should check with the school's financial aid office for information about their financial aid programs.

Freshman Admission

Admission: ACT (preferred) or SAT required. Students must have an admission index of 430. The index is determined by using a high school GPA on a 4.0 scale x 100 and test scores of ACT (preferred) or SAT (converted to ACT equivalent) x 10. Students must also meet the precollege curriculum requirements and remove any deficiencies within the first 24 credit hours. Students with admission index below 430 shall be granted conditional admission to the university.

COLLEGE ADMISSIONS CHECKLIST

Remember: Keep copies of everything. If you're sending applications or other important documents by mail, you might want to spend a little extra money and send them return receipt requested. This will let you know when the school received the documents. Some of the items on this list might not apply to every school. For example, few public colleges require an entrance essay; many private colleges do. You should check to make sure that people writing recommendations or sending transcripts do so by the deadline. And you shouldn't wait until the deadline to send something in — send it in early just in case something goes wrong.

FINANCIAL AID CHECKLIST

Remember: Keep copies of everything. If you're filing the FAFSA, the best way to do it is online at www.fafsa.ed.gov. You should print out a hard copy for your records. If you're applying for scholarships and grants administered by the school that require a separate application, you should consider sending the application return receipt requested. And, as always, don't wait until the last minute — things can go wrong. Computers crash, and mail occasionally gets lost. If you file early and keep track of what you've been doing, you have time to fix things.

SENIOR CALENDAR

August/September

- Ask colleges you're interested in to send you admissions information.
- If you're applying for Early Decision, start filling out the forms to meet the college's deadline.
- If you haven't taken the ACT/SAT or if you think you can do better, register. See page 8 for dates.
- Get with your counselor to find out about the financial aid sources available to you. Use KHEAA's Affording Higher Education. Copies are sent to high school counselors, high school libraries and public libraries.

October/November

- Meet with college admissions representatives at college fairs or when they visit your school.
- Attend a financial aid seminar if your school offers one. Read pages 29–30 about scams first.
- If you haven't picked a college yet, narrow your list by visiting schools and talking with students. You should probably talk with your parents too.
- If you're going Early Decision, most schools want the applications submitted about now.
- If you're going through the regular admissions process, it's time to ask teachers to write recommendations and to polish your admissions essay if you have to write one.
- Check with each school's financial aid office to see what financial aid forms they require in addition to the FAFSA.

December/January

- Make sure your applications were received on time. See previous page for admissions and financial aid checklists.
- Ask your parents to get their tax return information ready so you can submit the FAFSA as soon as possible after January 1.

- If you went Early Decision and were accepted, withdraw your applications from other schools.

February/March

- Submit midyear grades if the colleges you've applied to require them.
- Send in any deposits that are required.
- If you've been accepted by more than one college but haven't heard from your first choice, contact that school about a decision before you make any nonrefundable deposits to other schools.
- If you've decided on which school to attend, notify that college of your decision. Let any other colleges that have accepted you know about your decision.

April/May

- Follow up on your financial aid package. See page 48 for information about comparing packages.
- If you're going to need student loans, compare the benefits offered by the various lenders your college uses. See pages 48–52 for information about comparing lenders.
- Take AP tests if you're enrolled in AP courses.
- If you're on a waiting list at a school you really want to attend, ask the director of admissions how to strengthen your application.

June

- Let your high school counselor know which school you're going to so the school can send in final grades, class rank and proof of graduation.
- Send thank-you notes to counselors, teachers and others who helped you through the process.
- Prepare a budget for the coming school year.

PACKAGE EVALUATION

Take the time to fill out this form for a comparison of all the schools you are considering. This will give you an idea of what your best value is. Sometimes the most expensive schools have scholarships that will bring them in line with others. So don't limit yourself, consider all your choices and compare.

			Federal Pell Grant
			College Access Program Grant
			Kentucky Tuition Grant
			Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant
			Other Grants
			Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship
			Other Scholarships
			Federal Work-Study
			KHEAA Work-Study Program
			Federal Perkins Loan
			Federal Stafford Loan
			Federal PLUS Loan
			Other Loans
			Total Financial Aid Package

Instructions: If you're considering more than three schools, photocopy this page before proceeding. Select the schools for evaluation and write their names on the slanted lines. Answer the questions for each school. (If the answer is "yes," make a "✓" in the column. If the answer is "no," make an "X" in the column.) What are your findings?

SCHOOL EVALUATION

		Does the school offer the educational program you want?
		If you're admitted into the school, are you also admitted into the educational program you want?
		Is the school accredited by an agency accepted by the U.S. Department of Education (e.g., Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Council on Occupational Education, Accrediting Commission of Career Schools and Colleges of Technology, National Accrediting Commission of Cosmetology Arts and Sciences, American Association of Bible Colleges)?
		Is the school licensed or approved by the appropriate state government agency (e.g., Council on Postsecondary Education, State Board for Proprietary Education, State Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists, State Board of Barbering, Kentucky Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors)?
		Is the school approved for federal and state financial aid programs?
		Does the school have the resources to provide you the education you need to be successful in the work force? Look for up-to-date training devices, developmental course work and/or tutorial assistance, general education courses (e.g., English and math), educational qualifications of the faculty, and library holdings and resources related to your field of study.
		Will completion of the educational program qualify you for a job? An exam and/or apprenticeship may also be required. If a licensing examination is required for employment in your career field (e.g., nursing, cosmetology, or law), do a high percentage of the school's graduates pass the exam?
		Does the school have a job placement program? Is it free? Are a high percentage of graduates placed in jobs? Recent graduates and potential employers can help you answer these questions. A good school will give you a list of contacts.
		Does the typical starting salary for a new graduate of the school's educational program compare favorably with that of graduates from the same educational program at other schools? Does it meet with your expectation? If the school provides such data, ask to see detailed statistics substantiating the school's claim.
		Does the enrollment contract (if required) clearly indicate the complete cost of your course of study? Are all necessities (books, room and board, transportation, tools, uniforms, etc.) included in the cost? Schools must make printed cost-of-education information readily available to prospective students upon request.
		Does the enrollment contract contain language to protect you if the school closes or discontinues your program? Call the Better Business Bureau in the area to find out if the school has had problems.
		Does the school have a printed refund policy? Good schools have a reasonable refund arrangement for students who withdraw from school.
		Does the school have a low withdrawal rate? A high rate may be a warning sign.
		Will credits earned at one school be acceptable for transfer to another? If you plan to enter one postsecondary institution but transfer to another institution later, will your credits transfer?
		Does the school have a low student loan default rate? Call the U.S. Department of Education at 800.433.3243 to check a school's default rate. A high default rate may be a warning sign.

COMPARING COLLEGE COSTS

Tuition and fees are billable costs. If you're living in a dorm, room and board will also be a billable cost. Books and supplies, transportation, and personal expenses are nonbillable costs, and it is in these areas that you can greatly cut down on the cost of going to college. These costs will vary depending on where you go to school and how far your school is from where you live. The cost of books and supplies may vary not only according to the school you attend but also the academic program you choose.

	Sample Public	Sample Private	Schools That You're Considering
			1	2	3	4
Tuition and fees	$4,100	$15,250
Room and board	5,800	6,000
Books and supplies	1,200	900
Transportation	500	500
Personal expenses	1,950	1,800
Total	$13,550	$24,450
